Bud description

Trainwreck Auto's buds grow quite thick, with plenty bright yellowish-orange hairs that wrap around the medium-sized calyxes, complementing the light-green nugs beautifully. Expect extremely dense buds that grow stacked and end up looking like one giant nug in each branch. You'll be amazed by the trichome production, the sugar-dipped nugs with some colorful leaves coming out of them will leave your fingers full of resin and, as soon as you start grinding them, overwhelm you with a pungent lemony pine-sol with a touch of sourness and a spicy background.

Smoke report

After a couple of hits, you will experience a really cozy and stimulating head high that will get you in a comfortable state of mind and feeling good with everything and everyone; The long-lasting uplifting effect promotes a very calm and centered state of mind with a relaxed edge at first. The motivating effect will gradually transform into a more Indica-like high that deeply relaxes your muscles and relieves pain without leaving you too sedated, an ideal choice for those who want to stay alert during the morning and need to relax when the workday ends.

Plant appearance

Growing on the taller side, this autoflower can reach up to 120cm while growing quite compact and bushy, you'll see lots of dark-green fan leaves coming out of everywhere and a couple of side branches that can grow as tall as the main cola. Thanks to its Sativa heritage, this variety yields as much as it grows; Expect yields ranging from 350-500gr/m<sup>2</sup>, making it an ideal choice for all types of growers who are looking for a low-maintenance and fast flowering version of the classic.

Grow tips

This variety doesn't need any special attention and will grow great without any form of training but you can get even better yields by using any LST technique to space out the canopy. We recommend using 12L pots to allow your plant to grow to its maximum and shine. It's recommended to flush for at least 7 days to make sure you wash the excess nutrients from the medium and roots, enhancing the already powerful terps even more and allowing you to experience the true flavor and aroma this strain produces.

Flavor

This strain offers a unique and complex mix of sweet lemon and pine scents on the inhale and distinguished peppery and spicy undertones on the exhale. A truly potent show-stealer terpene profile that will smooth down the smoke and coat your mouth with a delicious bittersweet acridness for what seems like an eternity.
